

let's be stars
Did you know that stars are angels?
And you are all my angels and I am yours.

You know me
You know me intimately know my tone of voice when I'm shitty know that when I'm shitty I don't mean it and that I don't hold grudges.
And that I love you more openly when i'm drunk but no less when I'm sober I'm just more coy about it

You know I don't fuq on the first date not as a matter of principle but because I get scared and that I'm pseudo-mystical but 100 a psycho and that my revolutionary politics sometimes come second to my love of television dramas but that my culture is my number one love and everything else revolves around that.

I know you both like my fave films rewatched over and over you love them and can predict what happens but sometimes there's a part you forgot and it pleasantly surprises you again or you notice something you'd never noticed before and you're reminded of why this is the best film in the world and why you are the best friends in the universe

Was it written in the stars that at four in the morning we us three, would sit at the centre of the world pushing down from daylight to make the night last longer probably with some junk food and a joint and could you have known that each word I share with you contains a secret and you'll know many of them but not all of them for we cannot share all of ourselves - so revel in the parts of others that are opened just for you.

Lie here with me my friends I'll lie with you Lets love each other tonight and always we're jewels lined up on the windowsill of my room spreading rays, catching light.